April

During the month of April, our students learned the importance of “Means of Transportation” and where they belong. They learned to differentiate and classify them according to their characteristics.

They also enjoyed celebrating Easter, they learned about the meaning of Easter and its traditions as well.

We focused on letters P and R, and it was amazing to see how well they are recognizing their corresponding vocabulary. Numbers 9-10 were the highlight of our counting routine. We have taken a giant leap and started counting by 10s; they are really excited about it.

May

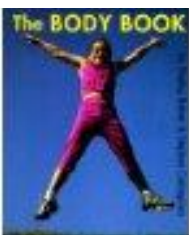

May will be our last month and therefore will be filled with many exciting moments...

We will work on the last topic of the school year: “I’m a Big Kid Now”. We will talk mainly about all the things we can do now since we have become “big boys and girls”. We will become aware of all the changes we have undergone during the year, enhancing our new capabilities.

Also, we will be participating in a diverse amount of activities, where we will be using our five senses to explore objects and our surroundings.

Our counting routine will continue with enthusiasm. Throughout the month, we will enhance our mathematical abilities. Letters and new words will continue to fill our days.

At the end of the month we will celebrate “Parents Day”, to commemorate Mother’s and Father’s Day, in order to acknowledge the great importance these two people have in our lives. We will be really busy making this moment truly special. May will bring many emotions to our hearts

Focus Book of the Month

The Body Book by Shelley Rotner

Focusing on children’s bodies, this cheerful picture book carries the message that even though kids come in different sizes, ages, and colors, they have a great deal in common: “hands to touch / arms to hug and hold/ legs and feet to run and jump, / elbows and knees to bend and move. / Fingers, toes, / and one belly button.” Colorful photos show different children engaged in a variety of activities, from playing soccer to playing violin. Upbeat, brief, and to the point.
